Lyceum Lecture.

The Lyceum last evening at the First Parish Church was a thronged audience, and listened with intense and undivided attention to one of the most brilliant lectures our people have had the pleasure of listening to for a long period.—The subject of the lecture was the Divine philosophy of organized action and physical labor, and was treated by Mr. Burritt in a masterly manner. His positions of the vast benefit resulting to mankind from the organized action of the Universe, and the physical labor imposed on man by his Creator, were ably argued, admirably sustained, and conclusively established.—It would afford us much pleasure, by the use of our extensive notes, to give our readers a synopsis of his arguments, and a short picture of his splendid and appropriate imagery in illustrating his points. But the property in this lecture, most of which has been written in this city, is valuable to Mr. Burritt. He has, while lecturing in New York and some other places, suffered severely from having his property, in carefully written lectures, taken away by reporters.—We will not sin in this way, in this instance, at least, since we know that Mr. B. desires we should not.

Great as were the expectations of our people, regarding Mr. B. we feel assured they were taken quite by delightful surprise with his lecture last evening.

The young man starting in life should give wide berth, as the sailors say, to the word cannot. A writer, well skilled in human nature, and whose counsel is valuable, advises young men that whatever may be their profession or pursuit, if they would hope for success they must not use the word cannot. They may as well attempt to swim with a Scotch grindstone at their neck, and a Paixhan shot at their heels, as to expect to accomplish anything worthy of men while this word is in their vocabulary.—When the gallant Miller, at the battle of Niagara, was asked by Scott if he could carry the enemy's batteries, suppose, instead of the determined "I'll try," he had whined out—"I cannot," where would have been his fame, what the result of that day? Cannot, accomplishes nothing but the ruin of him who uses it.

Let every young man keep shy of cannots.—Use not the word yourself, and be careful how you employ those that do. Napoleon never allowed the use of the word, impossible: and in the management of all business there should be no place for cannot. You can do all that is necessary to be done, if you set about it in the right time. If you do not, your labor will be like that of Sisyphus—ever beginning, never ending. Neglect nothing; keep a watchful eye over every part, that all moves in harmony, and together; and you will have no use for cannot.

The editor of the Hallowell Standard a violent Liberty party paper, is also the publisher of an occasional, or perhaps monthly paper called the "Seventy Six." This paper, the editor says is designed for the Congressional districts in which no choice was effected, and he calls lustily upon the women to go through their town and collect him $3,00 and send it on to him and he will forward 500 copies. This is a new mode of electioneering, and the chances we think, are that the money collected of female and other anti-slavery societies and contributions for the poor slaves, will be found to have been expended for the support of a political party press and its agents. We hope to see the bottom of this matter some way.

Our friend David Bugbee has been getting in a large and splendid stock of goods in his line, among which is a rich lot of letter paper and steel pens, specimens of which he has sent us, and which we find to be very delicately finished and highly promotive of easy and graceful correspondence. The letter paper is from the Southworth manufacturing company at West Springfield, Massachusetts, over which Gillott's steel pens slide with singular grace and ease.—With such materials as these, we think it would not be difficult for us to get up quite a respectable reputation as a penman.

The supreme court which was to have commenced a session in this city, yesterday, was, on account of the non-appearance of the Judge, adjourned by the Sheriff to this morning, at ten o'clock. We understand that Judge Tenney, who is to hold the term at its commencement, was delayed at Augusta, where he has been engaged in holding the Court, and that he will be here this morning and go on with the business. This day will probably be taken up in the call of the docket.

Our citizens have manifested a strong disposition to sustain the Lyceum, as a large number of tickets have been sold this season than ever before. The managers feel encouraged to secure the best talent to sustain the exercises unbroken through the lecturing season.

A considerable number of the Mormon emigrants from England, who passed on to Nauvoo last year, are now on their way back again.—Joe Smith is turned out to be a prophet not at all to their taste.

The U. S. ship Princeton and the Great Western.

The United States Ship Princeton, fitted with the submerged propellers, a few days since tested her speed with that of the Great Western, out of New York harbor and bay. The Great Western started at the signal gun, with all her lower sails set—the Princeton had none, and was a quarter of a mile astern when both were under full way. The contest at this point was very exciting to the thousands of spectators who thronged the Battery and Castle Garden. The True Sun says:—

"The Great Western was heavily laden, the Princeton was light—a streak of copper was visible to the eye; but the former had the benefit of her canvass, while the gallant Stockton seemed determined to win the race under bare poles. It appeared to us that when the vessels arrived off the quarantine they were abreast, and, if so, it was a handsome triumph for the Princeton under all the circumstances. Immediately, however, the latter passed the Great Western, and in doing so shook out her fore-top sail.

It was no longer a race after this. The Princeton moved ahead at once, and in a few minutes more set her main-top sail and jib. The Great Western also added her fore-top sail to her canvass; but she was rapidly left astern, and the frigate turned the point, making out from the Long Island shore at least ten minutes, as near as we could judge, before her rival. At twenty minutes past three the Princeton disappeared from the view. We believe the Great Western was not punctual for her hour, but was considerably behind her time. We observed that she was blowing off steam all the way down to the Narrows, while the Princeton made little perceptible smoke.

A great problem seems now to be solved by Capt. Stockton, and, indeed, the stern view of the vessels was a perfect demonstration of the superiority of his plan. The one presented two great obstacles to the wind and waves, as she moved along apparently at the mercy of a heavy sea; the other had smooth sides, a clean run, and seemed to be independent of the action of the waves. She was as snug and safe as a picket, while she had still the immense propelling power of a steamer.

We consider the Princeton a perfectly successful experiment. Some builders object to her leanness aft, but be that as it may, her speed and elegant appearance are the best reply to such an objection.

The Princeton carries the largest gun afloat, and many experienced sailors are of opinion that she would be a match for a 74. Her swiftness, ease of motion, and weight of metal, would, we think, give her a decided advantage, even in an action with a three decker.

She will probably soon be put in commission and sent on a cruise. This experiment seems to prove that cumbersome wheel-houses, and lofty smoke pipes will soon be regarded as unnecessary in ocean steamers.

Lecture to the Washingtonians.

We are requested to state that David Worcester, Esq., Teacher of the High School will deliver a lecture before the Washingtonian and the Martha Washington Societies at the High School room on Thursday evening, on the subject of Pneumatics. The members of these societies are invited to attend.

The editor of the Portland Advertiser says he had a beautiful nosegay presented to him on Friday. It consisted of a cluster of apple blossoms—fresh and fragrant as the newly opened rose, thickly set with a new crop of full grown leaves of the tree. It was gathered from the tree, in the garden of Mrs. Boyd on High Street, by a person who was gathering the ripe apples.

The Boston Advertiser says that the origin of the story about the ship Argo having been attacked by pirates in the Hoogly, was probably some silly hoax put upon Capt. French in Calcutta. In fact, the Argo was towed to sea by a steamer from Calcutta, ten days before this pretended occurrence.

Mr. E. F. Duren has received the ninth part of the Pictorial Bible and has extra numbers from the commencement. Getting out the Bible in this elaborate style of pictorial illustration and giving the text in a large, clear, and beautiful type some of the great publishing enterprises of the times.

Mr. Bugbee has received the November number of Graham's Magazine, and of Godey's Lady's Book. They are exceedingly beautiful and our readers can best understand their merits by stepping into Bugbee's and purchasing them for their own use and gratification.

Messrs. Smith & Fenno have received the fifth number of Harper's edition of M'Culloch's Gazetteer. This is a work of great merit and is now in the course of publication at a low rate but in good form and style and with valuable maps.

The King and Queen of France have presented to the Roman Catholic Bishop of Mississippi, a large Church Bell and a beautiful painting, for the new Cathedral now being constructed in Natchez.

A travelling mesmerist having said he was ready to answer any question that might be asked him, a Kentuckian desired to know "how much it cost per week to pasture Nebuchadnezzar during the time he was out on grass."

A young man by the name of Charles McGoldrick, died of lockjaw in Georgetown, D. C., produced from running a nail through his foot about three weeks since.

Fowler, the phrenologist, is giving a course of brilliant lectures at Portland. His lectures are highly esteemed for their useful suggestions to parents, and to all engaged in the subject of education. We think his lectures would be encouraged in this city.

At a Congregational meeting of the Fifth Presbyterian church of Philadelphia, on Monday evening last, the Rev George B. Cheever, of the city of New York, was unanimously elected to the pastoral charge of said church.

The U. S. ship Princeton and the Great Western.

The eight Annual Fair of the Agricultural Society of Bourbon County, Kentucky, was held during the last days of September. The ladies present were quite numerous, and many of them contributed articles for exhibition. Among the domestics that took a premium was a pair of Blankets, the manufacture of Mrs. James Hutchcraft, of Bourbon County, made of the long, fine fleece of the Bakewell sheep. They were of uncommon size and thickness, weighing each 1½ pounds. Upon one was embroidered in beautiful letters the word "TARIFF," and upon the other the name of the projector and defender of that measure—"HENRY CLAY." They were designed as a present to Mr. Clay—a present well worthy of the distinguished donee. The lady who made them selected the Hon. G. Davis to present them who accompanied the presentation with these remarks:

"Here, Mr. Clay, is a pair of blankets, made by Mrs. James Hutchcraft of Bourbon County, which she requests me to present to you. She has further commissioned me to express the gratification she feels in having the opportunity of making this most appropriate testimony to the great advocate of domestic industry; and I assure you, I have no less pleasure in being the medium of tendering to you so handsome a specimen of the handy-work and taste of our fair countrywomen."

Mr. Clay rose, and was presented to the donor, and said, in substance;

I thank you madam, for the honor you have done me in the presentation, by my friend, the representative from this district, of this fine specimen of household industry. They are beautiful, very beautiful. I will carry them home with me, and present them to my wife; and, whilst they protect us against the inclemency of winter, I will recall with pleasure the interesting occasion when I become their owner. Will you allow me, madam, to express the peculiar gratification I have experienced in the numerous, excellent, and tasteful articles with which you and the other ladies present have enriched this Fair?—You are in the right course—dismiss your merchants—supply your own family; for with such fabrics as have been spread out to our view to-day, we need no merchants but our own fair countrywomen! I trust that this spirit will not only abide with you, but increase; and that your next annual exhibition will afford still more numerous and more excellent specimens of your household industry. Diligence, perseverance, emulation, and competition, will cause progressive improvement in the fruits of your useful industry, as in every other field in which the faculties of man find employment. I hope to live to attend many of your Fairs, and to find each one exceeding that which may have preceded it.

This is a proper occasion for declaring the great American maxim that it is both our interest and our duty to make as much at home as we can, and to buy as little as possible abroad. The family of nation that acts upon this principle will never become bankrupt. Economy and household industry constitute the great and the only sure remedy for hard times with families. That family that practices industry and frugality, and sells more than it buys, will certainly rise to wealth and independence; whilst the one which acts upon opposite principles will surely fall into poverty and decay. As it is with families as it is with nations, for a nation is no more than a large collection of families. To remove the pressure of the times, let every individual buy only what he wants when he has the means to pay for it; when he has not this means let him buy not at all, and let him make his industry profitable by always selling more than he buys.

That man or nation, is not free and independent that is always in debt, or that lives mainly upon the labor of others. To make ourselves, to make the American nation independent, we must furnish our own necessities, our own comforts, our own luxuries, principally. And why can we not, why should we not do it? Why should we go to France and England for cloths and silks, when at our domestic hearths we can make articles of the same material of such substantial beauty as these? (pointing to several before him.) It is individual and national prodigality to do so. Let us foster and uphold our own industry, and it will enrich individuals and the nation; and neglect that, and prefer the labor of foreigners, and both individually and nationally we become poor.

I tender to the ladies and gentlemen here present my acknowledgments for the kindness with which I have been received and treated by them on this occasion; and I assure them that if spared in health I not only expect to be present at their next Fair, but also to mingle sociably with them at many succeeding Fairs.

Mr. CLAY having delivered this short and pertinent address in his peculiar felicitous manner, resumed his seat amidst the plaudits of the assembled multitude. It seemed that every body was hearty in commending the appropriateness of his remarks and the sound and wise maxims with which they were fraught.—Newark Daily Ad.

The large and beautiful ship, now on the stocks at Master Dunning's yard, and owned by Ordway & Winslow, will be launched this day between eleven and twelve o'clock.

To suffer unkindness and injustice from one upon whom we have depended for affection, and to whom we have a right to look for confidence and candor, is perhaps one of the greatest trials to which the heart can be subjected; and serves more than any other to loosen or snap the ties that bind us to life and to our species. It has the effect, however, of causing us to rely with a stronger faith and a more settled purpose, upon that future world—whose promises cannot deceive.

The human skin is perforated by a thousand holes in a space of a square inch. If therefore, we estimate the surface of the body of a middle sized man to be sixteen square feet, it must contain not fewer than 2,304,000 pores. The pores are the mouths of so many excretory vessels, which perform the important function in the animal economy of insensible perspiration.

Never enter a sick room in a state of perspiration, as the moment you become cool your pores absorb. Do not approach contagious diseases with an empty stomach; nor sit between the sick and the fire, because the heat attracts the thin vapor.

In accordance with the joint resolution of the General Assembly of Georgia, Governor McDougal has issued his proclamation, setting apart the first Friday in November next as a day of thanksgiving throughout the State, and calls upon the several religious denomination in the State to observe it as such.

From Tobacco.

The Mexican steamer Montezuma was off that port from Vera Cruz, waiting for water to go in. She had on board $45,000 to pay the troops at Tobacco; also sealed despatches the purport of which had not transpired. The treaty with Yucatan had not been signed. The Campeachians were raising an army to invade Tobacco. It was reported at the latter place, that Com. Moore was to take command of a Navy now building at New York, of 2 steamers and 2 frigates.

Accident on the Worcester Railroad.

As the one o'clock train of cars from Boston were proceeding West on Saturday, they came in contact with a yoke of oxen within two miles of Worcester. The engine was thrown from the track and rendered unfit for use. The oxen were both killed, and the accident detained the downward train from Springfield several hours, the passengers reaching Bangor at half past nine o'clock the same evening.

The Boston Mail says that a fire broke out about 9 o'clock Saturday morning, in the barn of Samuel Withington, Esq., in Dorchester. The wind being high, the flames soon communicated to another large barn and several outhouses, all of which were destroyed. At one time the large dwelling house was on fire, and it seemed impossible to save it, but by great exertions the flames subdued. The barns were filled with hay and grain, and contained valuable carriages and harnesses, all of which were consumed. The fire, it is said, was the work of an incendiary.

Counterfeiter Caught.

A person by the name of Lewis C. Jones, of Bethel, formerly of this city, was arrested on Saturday, and committed to prison, to be examined to-day, for uttering counterfeit money. He had passed a $10 bill on Mr. Benj. Fogg, a $3 on Mr. Moses Quimby, but in attempting to pass a $10 on A. H. Cutter & Co., was detected. Port. American.

The Sovereignty of the Sandwich Islands has been restored to the native Government, under King Kamehameha from whom it had been wrested by Lord Paulet. The independence of these Islands is now secured, and they will continue to be a lodge on the high way of Nations for the commerce of all friendly powers.

Matters look rather squally in Canada. The Montreal Courier says, "Ministers have been defeated in the Legislative Council by a majority of five on the question of the seat of government. The consequence is, that the Speaker, the Hon. Mr. Jameson, has resigned."

The New Haven Herald of Friday announces the death of Tutor Dwight, of Yale College, caused by being stabbed by a student named Fassitt, of Philadelphia, during a college freak which the Tutor was attempting rightfully to suppress.

A man named McCormick was stabbed in Boston on Saturday night with a jackknife, by an Irishman who was intoxicated at the time. He was badly hurt, but will survive.

Mrs. Bellows was seriously injured in Boston on Sunday by being ran over by a horse and carriage.

We learn that some clue has been obtained to the persons who broke into the Haverhill Depot a few days since. An Irishman, at Lowell, has been taken into custody who is believed to be the rascal, and on whom the Watch, belonging to Mr. Hall, was found. The prisoner snapped a loaded pistol at the officer, but which did not explode. The wife had two pistols, and a bowie knife in her possession. A box, containing keys, &c. was found secreted, which led to the detection of the man. We incidentally hear, also, that he had made an attempt to break into the Nashua office. We rejoice that this robbery is thus exposed, and that no person connected with the Railroad is implicated in the case. (Hav. Gazette.)

FARM FOR SALE.

THE subscriber offers for sale, that tract of land known as the Todd farm in the town of Chester. It is pleasantly situated on the river about four miles above Lincoln village and consists of about 83 acres mostly excellent tillage land, including eight or ten acres of out of repair and a small house upon it somewhat out of repair and a moderate sized barn. To an experienced and practical Farmer, who would improve it himself, this Farm would be highly valuable, as it will yield with suitable cultivation a large crop of Hay and Grain, which in that situation must always command a market at good prices. It will be sold on reasonable terms on application to me at Bangor.
